Neighborhood Spokesmen Named By Citizens Against Consolidation

The group of citizens formed to campaign against consolidation of Borough and Township announced this week that its name will be "Citizens Against Consolidation," with an X-marked square in front of "against," as on the ballot that will face voters in November. The group also named some of those who will be representatives in various neighborhoods.

Also, Robert McChesney, Democratic candidate for mayor of the Borough, said he wanted to make it clear at the start of his campaign that he opposes consolidation. He regards it as a separate issue from the mayoralty race, he said.

"Consolidation has no bearing on a person's qualifications to be mayor," he stated. "Consolidation is an issue, but the voters will decide it themselves, and cannot expect their leaders to decide. It isn't the kind of thing where a candidate can say, 'I will, if I get into office.'"

He said he will not be associated with Citizens Against Consolidation.

"At this time," he declared in a statement, "consolidation would not benefit either municipality and might inadvertently create hardships unforeseen by the (Joint Consolidation) Study Commission."

"The Commission needed to come up with compelling reasons why a unified municipality would be so superior that the citizens of both Princetons should discard what they now have. It did not find such reasons," Mr. McChesney declared.

He pointed to what he regards as differences between the two communities, particularly to the high percentage of renters in the Borough compared with the Township. He estimated that some 60 percent of Borough residents are renters, and he cited the fact that the Borough has a rent control ordinance, while the Township does not.

Renters would be a minority in a consolidated community, he said. Homeowners often feel "deeply suspicious of rent control and what they refer to as 'the kind of people it brings in' and once tenants are no longer in the majority, I don't see rent control continued."

Amplifying his prepared statement, Mr. McChesney said he had talked for a morning with William Selden, co-chairman of the Study Commission.

"We came to different conclusions on the basis of the same data," he smiled.

Economic savings, the quality of government and services and the "one community" philosophy are speculative on both sides, he suggested. "It depends which side you're on, how you view these things. I question whether, socially, we are indeed one community."

He quoted 1975 figures updating the 1970 census, showing six times as many Township as Borough families with more than $50,000 a year, and four times as many with more than $25,000.

"I don't know what that means," he said, "but it strikes me as very unusual."

School Board Seeks to Halt Picketing Houston Cites Psychological Damage

The Princeton school board's special labor counsel, Justin Walder, asked the Newark office of the National Labor Relations Board this Tuesday to stop the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (Local 269) from picketing the Princeton High School construction site.

The action follows last Thursday's appearance of the union before Superior Court Judge Hervey S. Moore. The school board had obtained a show-cause order, requiring the union to appear before Judge Moore to show why it shouldn't be told to stop picketing.

Judge Moore told the school board to go to the NLRB. If that body dismisses them, Judge Moore said, the board can return to Superior Court and he will rule on the case.

In May, when the board's contractor, Rule Construction Company, went to the NLRB, the labor board ruled that the union's pickets were only "informational pickets" and rejected Rule's request to have them removed.

The board now believes that time may be the governing factor.

Members hope that what seemed to the NLRB three months ago to be informational picketing — that is, pickets informing public and non-union workers about wages and working conditions — may now be perceived as a secondary boycott, simply because so much time has passed. There is no actual strike at the construction site, but union workers will not cross the picket line.

Board and Superintendent Paul Houston were encouraged by Judge Moore's remarks. The case has been so unexpected and so tangled that, as Dr. Houston phrased it, "Is it my ignorance, or the strange situation? Judge Moore led us to believe it was the situation, and that there was nothing we could have done differently. We felt that way, too, and it was nice to hear Judge Moore confirm our view."

There is still no estimate of how much money the work stoppage has cost. Dr. Houston said this week that there is "psychological violence — we are being damaged psychologically. There will be damage to the kids — that school, as it is now, is not the most conducive place for learning."

Referring to the remodeling of the building, he said with a wry smile, "It's taken all the fun out of it."

Local 269 has been picketing the site because a school board contractor, Jaden Electric, is a non-union firm. Jaden was chosen because it was low bidder and by law, a school board is required to select the lowest qualified bidder. School officials expressed distaste this week with testimony by Donald J. Kennedy, business agent for Local 269, given in deposition to the board's regular attorney, James McLaughlin, before Thursday's hearing.

As read in court, Mr. McLaughlin's questions and Mr. Kennedy's answers are as follows:

Q. How long will it (picket line) be up?
A. I don't know.
Q. Is there any reason why you don't know?
A. No. I just haven't decided how long it will be up.
Q. It is up because of the failure, as I understand it, of Jaden to pay the prevailing rate of wage, right?

Focus Will Be on Administrative Shifts as School Year Begins

The most important thing in Princeton's public schools as the year begins: to make sure administrative shifts work out "in the positive ways we expect," as Superintendent Paul Houston says, "and so far, the signs are good."

To refresh summer memories: John Sakala is the new principal at Princeton High School; George Petrillo is now principal of Littlebrook; Gene Biringer of Riverside; Norma Gumbiner of Johnson Park; Murray Cohen of Community Park. William Johnson remains as principal of John Witherspoon Middle School.

"It's nice to start fresh in a district that hasn't had a chance to do so," the superintendent remarked in a pre-school interview this week.

In 1979-80, he hopes to form instructional councils of parents in each school, "with true parent involvement." Parent Teacher Organizations are financially and psychologically supportive and most valuable, he says, but he thinks parents would respond to forums where they could talk about instructional issues.

"We would use these school-level instructional councils to help us set goals and work out ways to implement them — which the state requires under the thorough-and-efficient education law."

"It would be an on-going group of citizens and staff, an advisory group for me and for principals. Suppose a principal has an idea for a pilot program. This group of constituents could provide reactions to the idea."

"People around town have told me they want to talk about instructional things with principals — how can teaching be improved, and so on. Many citizens have expertise, but no forum. And something like this might de-fuse criticism, even before it starts."

Another important thing is "climate," Dr. Houston says, defining it as "a sense of positiveness, of common goals, of smooth communication."

The "climate" in a school, Dr. Houston explains, is the concern of its principal, and principals have been attending workshops in which they are sharpening their skills.

"Principals who are new at a school see this as a golden chance — to put the house in order before somebody says it isn't!"

"We have to spend so much time with things like testing, accountability, other mechanical things, that there is danger in being too mechanical. Because teaching is an art — you mustn't lose sight of the human factor."

The superintendent would like to see a task force consisting of members of the teachers' union and the administration. It would talk, not about legal grievances, but about broader things — are there school policies that are inhibiting? How can people work together better?

Some overtures have been made to the Princeton Regional Education Association, Dr. Houston said, but

A. Yes — no. It's up because they aren't paying the rate established by our collective bargaining agreement.
Q. And you haven't yet decided when the picket line will be taken away, right?
A. No, I haven't decided.
School officials say they regard Mr. Kennedy's replies as "arrogant."

Meanwhile, Mollnar Electrical Contractors, Inc., second lowest bidder after Jaden, has sued the school board. Mollnar is basing its suit on the state ruling that the board acted illegally in accepting Jaden because Jaden did not, in the state's view, have proper qualification. There was a difference of about $20,000 between the bids.

Dr. Houston said this week that the board could have joined the Mercer-Burlington Affirmative Action Plan, a union-oriented group. In that case, he said, the board wouldn't have had to accept the Jaden bid. But it would have been prohibited from using any non-union labor in any activity anywhere in the school district. This would have presented a long-range problem with costs, he pointed out.

"We've tried very hard to keep open with the public in this matter," Dr. Houston said. "We kept quiet while informal discussions were going on, but other than that, we've let the public in on every action we've taken."

there has not yet been a reply. It all comes together, Dr. Houston observes: the switch in principals with the chance to start afresh, the moment to make a link with the teachers' union and above all, the opportunity to involve parents.

New teachers will be in the system this year, over half a dozen, and Dr. Houston is tremendously pleased with all of them. "We went with a winner in every case," he says happily, "not just the best of a mediocre group."

Those who follow school news will recall that several non-tenured teachers were "rified" (RIF: Reduced in Force) last spring. All of those who were not replacements of somebody on leave have been brought back into the system, which staff attrition has made possible.

"We still have a smaller staff than we had last year," the superintendent continued. "We had set our staff for declining enrollment: Johnson Park had ten teachers last year; we staffed it for ten — but we had to hire two more because enrollment has gone up there. We have special education teachers for two programs, also. It's the first time in a long time for new teachers, and this may be a pattern."

Also, for the year ahead, Dr. Houston sees continuing studies of building usage, a continuing discussion of so-called "extended kindergarten," in which children attend for more hours in the day than in regular kindergarten, and the development of programs for gifted and talented children (see page 1B, this issue).

"We have less time than stuff to do, but we're ready to go when the year starts."

Public School Enrollment Down by 167

As of Last Friday, 2,838 students are enrolled in Princeton's schools and ready to start the academic year next Wednesday, September 5. The number is down from the 3,005 who were in school at the end of September last year. Since one number is about a month off from the other, it's a little like flunking your arithmetic by adding apples and bananas, but it gives some indication of the school population: The high school figure is actually the June 30 estimation.

The breakdown:

	August, 1979	Sept. 30, 1978
Princeton High	1,169	1,125
John Witherspoon	620	707
Community Park	257	317
Johnson Park	228	212
Littlebrook	316	346
Riverside	248	298

Almost exactly as predicted, according to school officials. Nobody can account for the increase at Johnson Park, long the frail member of the family. Two teachers had to be added there. And the middle school is lower than usual.

Superintendent Paul Houston says that firm figures from Princeton University, the Seminary and the Institute for Advanced Study — "better than ever before" — helped the schools predict enrollment. It was the first time the schools had asked these institutions how many new students would be bringing families. As always, enrollments are expected to pick up in September.

Anti-Consolidation

Many of those who support consolidation are involved professionally with the theoretical side of government, he commented, and think chiefly in terms of efficiency. His own background, as a youth in a small New England town with small government, "has given me a natural suspicion of 'efficient government,'" he said. "But whatever happens, Princeton will remain Princeton. Both towns have dedicated, active, concerned people. One can hardly see that changing. The town will survive."

Citizens Against Consolidation said that their treasurer will be Robert F. Mooney, 46 Cedar Lane, former administrator of the Borough. (Contributions may be mailed to him at that address.)

So far, all the names released by the CAC are Borough residents, although the organization is open to Township residents as well.

Counsel will be attorney Alan Wallack, 29 Hamilton Avenue; area co-ordinator for the distribution of material, John Miller, 123 Patton Avenue; publicity, Orren Jack Turner Jr., 39 Hamilton; issues chairman, John Bleimeier, 32 Hawthorne; campaign co-ordinator, Janice Stonaker, 100 Jefferson.

Mr. Cornforth, in reading off the names listed above, said there were others. Some, he added, might not want their names published. "I want to emphasize the depth of feeling, in people we have talked to," Mr. Cornforth said. "They feel deeply it's the wrong thing for this community."

Mrs. van den Blink, a Democrat (Mr. Cornforth is Republican), said it was "interesting to work with people across party lines." "There are issues more important than whether you're a Democrat or a Republican and this is it," Mr. Cornforth commented.

SNOWDEN LANE CULVERT: Harry's Brook, meek in dry weather but a demon when he's wet, will be channeled into a new and wider culvert on Snowden Lane after this five-by-six-foot culvert has been replaced by one 20 feet wide and six feet high. Work by Mercer County engineers will close Snowden to traffic for 60 working days—probably three months. Vehicles are being diverted along Harriet Drive. James DiLouie, county bridge engineer, has designed the new culvert for a 100-year storm. It will protect upstream properties from flooding and, according to Mr. DiLouie, will mean velocities "nowhere near as great as now" for downstream residents, and less erosion. Water volume may be the same, possibly greater, however. The culvert, firmly built, wouldn't have had to be replaced if it hadn't been for serious flooding, Mr. DiLouie said. The cost is $93,000 lower than his estimate.

RAISES IN DISPUTE

Administrators, Board. Unable to reach agreement on a new salary scale, the Princeton Regional Administrators Association and the school board have turned to mediation, and the first day-long session was held last Friday.

The board will hold an executive session next Tuesday to discuss contract negotiations and it is expected that the impasse with the PRAA will be discussed at that time.

Superintendent Paul Houston, who does not come under the PRAA, pointed out this week that the two parties are caught: the administrators with inflation, the board with state-imposed caps on its budget. For the first time, Dr. Houston said, the board is proposing the administrators accept a shortened work year in lieu of a greater increase in pay.

The superintendent said it was no longer true that administrators in the Princeton school system were better paid than administrators anywhere else in New Jersey. At present, he said, Princeton's administrators' salaries are probably in the upper third, compared to salaries elsewhere in the state, and are not so different from neighboring communities' salaries as they once were.

The negotiations are delicate, he commented, since administrators are, in a sense, "the arm of the board." Gene Biringer, principal of Riverside School, is head of the PRAA.

MORE PARKING?

Seminary Asks. Plans of Princeton Theological Seminary to expand an existing parking lot by 55 spaces will go before the Planning Board next Tuesday as a conditional use authorization. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Valley Road building.

The board will also continue the hearing of Albert Salzman's plans to build 13 houses in the Balcort area, and will receive preliminary and final subdivision plans of William P. Bundy to subdivide his Great Road property into three lots, constructing a new single-family apartment in an existing barn on one of them.

Preliminary subdivision plans will be presented by Nassau Builders, Inc., Herrontown Road, and by Princeton Research Lands for a package on Poor Farm and Herrontown.

Ruth Sharon's request for a renewal of her conditional use will be reviewed. Mrs. Sharon has an art studio at 55 Deer-path.

CAR HOOD SCRATCHED

By Sharp Object. Kevin Noonan, 218 B Harrison Street, noticed Monday that figures had been scratched on the hood of his 1979 car while it had been parked overnight on the street.

He told Ptl. David Wilbur that he had parked the car about 4:30 Sunday afternoon and discovered the damage at 12:30 p.m. Monday.

Man Charged With Break-out. In a twist from the usual break-in, Borough police Monday morning arrested a man for a break-out.

Police have charged Steven McShane, 29, no known address, with trespassing after he tried to break out of an abandoned and boarded-up house at 227½ John Street at 3:44 in the morning. Police added the house bore "no-trespassing" signs.

Ptl. William Hunter and Ptl. William Fitch responded when a neighbor called to report hearing a lot of pounding from a house in the area -- as if someone were trying to break in. The officers found McShane trying to extricate himself with a sledgehammer.

McShane told police it was raining and he was trying to find a dry place to sleep. He continued that he had asked two persons on Clay Street where he might go and they allegedly led him to the vacant house, unlocked a padlock and led him inside.

Unbeknown to McShane, police said, the two then relocked the padlock when they left. McShane told police that he became panicky when he awoke and found himself locked in. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court September 5.

THIEVES ARE SELECTIVE
Take Only "Selectric" Typewriters. Somewhere there is a market for stolen electric typewriters. Seven more were stolen last week -- all expensive IBM Selectric models -- five in the Township and two in the Borough.

Stolen from the Commodities Corporation on Mount Lucas Road were five typewriters valued at $900 each. Police report entry to the building was gained by breaking a 46" by 57" Thermopane window with a rock between 2 Sunday morning and 12 noon the same day. Det. Frank Boccanfuso and Ptl. James Vandermark are investigating.

Two $800 machines were reported stolen Monday morning from a second-floor office in the New South Building on the university campus. Investigators from Princeton University security and the police report that there were no signs of forced entry.

Taken from a Nassau Street apartment between Chestnut and Murray place were a Polaroid camera, movie camera, pocket watch and chain with a combined value of $395. Police report the intruder entered the second-floor apartment from a roof after unlocking a window. The entry was reported on Saturday.

Saturday evening, a sneak thief entered the unlocked rear door of a Linden Lane home and stole a purse containing $80 and credit cards. The purse was recovered later in a Maple Street rear yard -- intact except for the money.

The car of a Hazlet resident was broken into while it was parked overnight last week on Nassau Street. Taken were a blue blanket and bedding valued at $15. Police said a right front window was broken out.

Township police reported three entries last week.

A vacant house on Mercer road was discovered entered Saturday by a gardener. Police, who report the house was "neatly ransacked" say they don't know at this time what may have been taken.

There was an unsuccessful attempt to enter the house through a basement window in the front. entry was gained by breaking a glass pane in a rear basement door.

A Linden Lane resident discovered Saturday her house had been broken into, after returning from a visit to a friend.

Police said the victim's house had been entered by cutting a window screen and the house thoroughly searched. It is unknown if anything was taken.

Between 3 and 9 Sunday morning, someone entered the unlocked front door of a South Harrison Street home and removed $59 from a bedroom. Nothing else was taken.

Bridge to Open

The Mercer Road bridge over Stony Brook will be opened to traffic at 9 a.m. next Thursday, September 6, according to Mercer County Engineer Donald T. Harney. Contractors completed repair work on the historic structure in advance of the September 30 completion date, he said.

Princeton Township still must build new road approaches to the bridge, and municipal officials hope for the bond ordinance introduction early in September. The dollar cost is still being calculated.

The Township has been waiting for a stream encroachment permit from the state, and it has just arrived in the engineer's office, officials said this week.

Although Mr. Harney originally stated that he would not open the narrow bridge until the Township's new approaches were ready, he commented this week that, with reconstruction completed, he had no alternative.

The bridge, built in the early 19th century, has been closed to traffic since May, 1978, after Mr. Harney declared it unsafe.

house on Stanworth Drive, and two bicycles were stolen.

One of the later was a $150, 10-speed model taken from a Greenholm rear yard - it was unlocked - and another 10-speed model was taken Friday from a house on Green Street. It was locked.

A New York resident had her brown leather shoulder bag stolen between 2 and 3 Monday afternoon when she left it unattended while eating at Commons on the university campus. She lost $152 and credit cards.

Running shoes, gym shorts, and a wallet containing $20 and credit cards were stolen early last week from a locked locker at Dillon Gym on campus. Police identified the victim as a Montgomery Township resident.

A wooden bench valued at $130 was stolen last week from in front of P.J.'s Pancake House on Nassau Street. It was the property of the restaurant, police said.

In the Township, an undetermined amount of change was stolen early Friday morning when a soda machine in the Princeton Shopping Center laundromat was pried open and its coin box emptied. Police, who checked the entire mall area without success, found four dimes on the floor near the machine.

An employee of Bamberger's in the shopping center lost two rings which she had left behind in a fitting room after trying on clothing.

Police described them as a diamond ring surrounded by eight rubies valued at $200 and a yellow-gold ring with two diamonds and an oval amethyst valued at $140.

HAMILTON MAN CHARGED

With Eluding Police Officer. Twenty-one year old Richard H. Lemore of Hamilton Township has been charged by Township police with eluding a police officer.

Lemore was arrested at 12:45 Saturday morning on River Road near Herrontown following a high speed chase. It began when he was seen by Ptl. Renn Kaminsky and Ptl. Peter Savalli speeding south on North Harrison Street.

Police said Lemore refused to stop and ran a light at the intersection of Hamilton. He turned left on the Princeton-Kingston Road and reached speeds of 80 to 85 miles an hour, police said, before being stopped. He was later released, pending his appearance in Township court.

Juvenile Court, following his release to his parents.

SIX ARE ARRESTED

On University Campus. Six persons were arrested last week on the university campus, two Tuesday morning at 4:16 by university proctors.

Adam Roth, 21, 102 Moore Street, was charged at police headquarters with the larceny of a bicycle from the area of Little Hall. Regan Kennedy, 21, of New York City, was charged by police with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana. Both are scheduled to appear in court here October 3.

Four Trenton residents were apprehended early Sunday morning by proctors, after they were seen leaving Wilcox Hall with a quantity of candy. A candy machine in the building had been broken into, police said.

All four - two juveniles 16 and 17 and two adults, Kevin Wells, 19, and Walter Polk, 18 - were charged by the university with trespassing. Wells and Polk were also charged with larceny by Ptl. Randy Sutton.

Another Trenton resident, 20-year old Irwin Baxter, has been charged with the larceny of a $240 bicycle from Kopp's Cycle Shop, 14 John Street.

Baxter was seen removing the bicycle from a display area Thursday afternoon. He was stopped on Quaker Road by Ptl. David Funk of the

CHARGES ACCUMULATE

For Green Street Man. It was not a good week for 19-year-old Briar Tadlock of 29 Green Street.

It began last Wednesday morning when Tadlock was observed behind a counter at the Suburban Bus Terminal on the corner of Nassau and Witherspoon streets, allegedly stealing money from a cash drawer. He fled when confronted by an employee. Police said $10 was taken.

provided by witnesses, Det. Gerald Patterson signed a complaint against Tadlock, charging him with larceny. He also obtained a warrant for his arrest.

The warrant was served at 3:40 Saturday morning by Ptl. Randy Sutton, who stopped a car Tadlock was operating on Alexander Road near Mercer. Ptl. Sutton stated that he saw Tadlock throw something from the car before it came to a stop.

He charged Tadlock with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana. In addition, the officer found an 18-inch machete under the front seat and charged Tadlock and his passenger, Perrystan King, 20, 28 Green Street, with possession of a concealed dangerous weapon. Ptl. Sutton was assisted in the arrest by Sgt. David Potts of the Township.

Both Tadlock and King were later released but they face a September 5 appearance in Borough court.

Is Youthful Vandalism Increasing?
Are acts of youthful vandalism on the rise in Princeton?
One Princeton resident whose front window had been broken this month by a rock phoned Town Topics to air her concern about vandalism. And, indeed, the weekly reports from the police docket of broken windows, vandalized parked cars, uprooted mailboxes and so on raises the question.
The answer - from Township juvenile officer Jerry Offredo and his Borough counterpart, Douglas Watson - is "no."
"It's summertime. Any time the kids are out of school there is a tendency for it to increase, no question about it," said Det. Offredo. "But in the number of kids involved, I'd say no."
"Last year it was mailboxes. We grabbed four or five kids and it stopped. This year it seems to be pellet guns in the Riverside area. It's basically two different areas; it's not all across town."
He identified the troublesome areas as Riverside (Howe Circle, Prospect Avenue) and Littlebrook (White Pine Lane, Roper Lane, Random Road). While acknowledging such spots, Det. Offredo added that he was not prepared to make a blanket statement saying juvenile vandalism is on the increase in the Township.
"I haven't seen any increase," echoed Det. Watson, who, nonetheless quickly added, "it's still prominent as far as that goes."
In contrast to national statistics which show an increase, Det. Watson commented that vandalism in the Borough "has been holding steady. It's been pretty much run of the mill."

School auditorium. It will feature William Selden and Margaret Broadwater, co-chairpersons of the Joint Consolidation Study Commission.

It is clear that consolidation is the most important issue in the two communities," he states. "The future of the central business district, town services and tax rates all can be affected by consolidation. The Republican Association feels it is important to have a series of meetings around Princeton so every voter will have a chance to hear the arguments pro and con and will be able to make an informed decision. We hope people from both communities will come, listen, and ask questions about the proposed merger of Princeton Borough and Township."

Historical Society of Princeton will conduct programs to train volunteer guides on three successive Mondays, September 17, 24, and October 1. The programs will be held in Pierce Hall of the Trinity Parish House on Mercer Street from 9 to noon, and all who are interested in the work of the Historical Society are invited.

The Society has openings for volunteers to serve a two-hour shift once a week for several months acting as guides for the visiting public and staffing the shop. They would also welcome volunteers with skills in sewing, typing, carpentry, helping with large mailings, and mounting exhibits.

Participants will be instructed in the proper procedures for guides and shopkeepers. Each session will also feature a discussion on local history. On September 17, Constance Greiff, the Historical Society president, will speak on the growth of Princeton. On September 24 Michael Stec, research associate at the Society, will discuss puzzling aspects in the case of John Honeyman, the Revolutionary War spy from Griggstown. A slide presentation entitled "Parlors" will be given October 1 by Helen Westcott, a former Society Museum chairman.

For more information and a brief interview before the series begins, call Louise Dunham, director of volunteers, at 921-6748 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays between 9:30 and 1:30, or at 921-2761 after 5 p.m.

Yes for Consolidation.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
To keep Princeton Princeton the Borough and Township must unify in the face of encroaching forces — economic, governmental, rampant development around Princeton. There should be no competition between Borough and Township. Both have the same interests at heart, to keep Princeton a wonderful place to live, and even improve it.

This can be done only through timely consolidation now. Lower taxes will result from consolidation than would result from the continued inefficiencies of duplication. Why should Princeton pay higher taxes to maintain two governments, not to mention what sometimes seems like a third government of over 12 joint agencies necessary to coordinate the other two?

We are fortunate that consolidation is so easily feasible and economically wise just now, which it won't be in a few years because of rising tax rates in the Township.

I would like to correct one error of fact in John B. Miller's letter, when he says that the Commission did not consider possible negative effects of consolidation. Nothing could be further from the truth, as anyone knows who has read the Commission Report. The negative side is exhaustively considered, but the Commission members simply could not find any validity in the arguments.

We, the voters, elected the Commission to study the consolidation issue because each of us did not have the time to devote a year to a study of the question. The Commission members plus over a hundred participating citizens did this work for us. The Commission member arguments are raised about have unanimously recommended consolidation just as we would probably have done also, if we had sat on the Commission. Let's take advantage of our timely foresight in electing the Commission by voting "yes" to consolidation, as they recommend.

DEBORAH VINK
70 Western Way

Consolidation Backed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Now that the Consolidation of the Borough and the Township is being seriously considered, it is inevitable that we shall hear many arguments against it: arguments concerning tax levels, zoning rules, "community" interests, etc. I should therefore like to take this opportunity to present what I believe to be the three most important reasons for voting in favor of this tremendously important issue.

1. At the very least, two independent Princetons present a bizarre geographical picture: the Township being the doughnut, and the Borough being the hole in the doughnut. Starting south from Kingston, you can travel on Route 27 through the Township, cross the border into the Borough, go further south on 27, and then eventually cross the border back into the Township again!

Does it make any sense to have so many of the area's private residences in the encircling Township, yet concentrate almost the entire business district in the Borough? It is as if one lived in one municipality, but had time to devote a year to a study of the question. The Commission members plus over a hundred participating citizens did this work for us. The Commission member arguments are raised about the separate "community"

2. No matter what arguments are raised about the separate "community"

Interests of the two municipalities, virtually everyone living here has but one municipal identification: he or she is a Princetonian.

I have never met a local resident who called himself a "Township person" or a "proud resident of Princeton Borough." People here live in Princeton, period: it is their identification, their home, their point of reference in an otherwise crazy, unstable world....

For people living within the Princetons, consolidation occurred a long time ago, and is very much a part of their social, political, and emotional lives. For most of us, consolidation would be merely a ratification of what is already a living reality.

3. Most importantly, if the problems of the Princetons can be solved by government agencies at all, it is clearly in everyone's best interest to have the two governments combined. One hears a lot of talk these days about "regional planning," but most regional planning organizations attempt to mediate between the competing interests of wildly different municipalities or even of whole counties. The result is often chaos.

The two Princetons, on the other hand, really do constitute one "region," so that regional planning here would make a great deal of sense. If, for example, the traffic problems of Nassau Street are ever to be solved, it will clearly take the cooperation of the Township and the Borough to make it happen: there is simply no way to get cars away from the "inner city" without rerouting them through the Township.

Clearly, it would be much easier to handle this problem if the entire traffic pattern of the region were being managed by one municipal government instead of two. As the already consolidated school districts have shown, consolidation leads to a far more natural pattern of community development than separation does....

Consolidation represents the natural, normal merging of two communities that should never have been separated in the first place. Our two Princetons have been living together for years as a truly attractive couple: it is time for the voters to make that union legal!

Town's Support Sought.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
In this beautiful town of Princeton, where history has given us so much cause to be proud, we often see in our oldest buildings the reminders of the beginnings of great events or traditions.

The tourist or out-of-towner is frequently reminded the Princeton University was the oldest college of the middle Atlantic seaboard area. Still on campus, the visitor or townsman can look at Nassau Hall and remember that our very first congress carried on its war-driven business from those sequestered rooms.

Post-revolutionary days saw pride-evoking history still being acted in an expanding community. Streets, parks, buildings, and even subtler types of memorials keep reminding us of people's love of or service to our town in days past.

But history is a continuous story with its sometimes glamorous, exciting, world-shaking events or — in most cases — its quiet approach to some innovation or change that will once again stir us with pride in "another thing well done."

Such a latter situation is before us now. About four years ago a mere handful of older citizens, encouraged and aided by the Recreation Department, took upon themselves an organization project that now yields a membership of more than 450 Princeton Senior Citizens.

This miraculous membership growth with its commensurate growing need for meeting space has resulted in the designating of the late Miss Fine's School gymnasium for future Princeton Senior Citizens' activities.

Legal and financial cooperation among Princeton Borough Council, Princeton Township committee, and the State of New Jersey's Department of Community Affairs' Division on Aging is making this a long-awaited possibility.

Now with contractual settlements between State and Princeton Senior Citizens behind them, Princeton Senior Citizens' Club is ready for renovation and equipping programs at the gym.

We are appealing once again to the empathies and sympathies of a community that for over 250 years has boasted of its major and minor achievements. With the help of all of Princeton's citizens we can soon list this new project as a major accomplishment.

A fund raising drive now being launched will be successful only if everyone in Princeton understands the urgency of individual and group endeavors.

ART In Princeton

REGISTRY ESTABLISHED
For Women Artists. Women artists who live or work in the state are invited to join the Douglass College library's slide registry of New Jersey women artists.
Established by reference librarian Lynn Miller six years ago, the State University registry serves as a research facility containing names, address and slides representative of the work of female artists in the state.

The library presents annual group exhibits of works by selected artists in the registry. The registry is also used by art dealers, arts councils, curators and women's organizations and by Douglass students, faculty and alumnae.
To be included in the registry, an artist should send her resume and three slides of current work to Lynn Miller at the Mabel Smith Douglass Library, Chapel Drive, Douglass College, New Brunswick, N.J. 08903.

Each of the slides should be marked with the artist's name, address and phone number and the work's title, medium, dimensions and date. For further information, call Ms. Miller at 201-932-9407.

A "Directory of New Jersey Women Artists" is available free from the library listing the names, addresses and media of 450 artists on file with the registry. The guide was published by the library and the New Jersey Division on Women.

It can be obtained by sending a request and a self-addressed 8 1/2 x 11 inch manila envelope, stamped with 54 cents in postage, to Ms. Miller at the library.

ENTRIES ARE SOUGHT

For Juried Exhibition. Entries for "2nd Biennial New Jersey Artists" — the state's most prestigious juried exhibition of 1979 — must be delivered to the New Jersey State Museum in Trenton the week of September 10 through 15.

Open without charge to any professional artist currently living or working in New Jersey, the Biennial is sponsored jointly by the State Museum and The Newark Museum.

Each artist may submit one recent work for consideration. Media include paintings, sculpture, watercolors, drawings, prints and photographs, but not crafts or video.

Jurying will be conducted on September 19 by Janet Kardon, director of the Institute of Contemporary Art at the University of Pennsylvania, and William Bailey of the Yale School of Art.

The exhibition of accepted works will open in the Main Galleries of the State Museum with a public preview reception the evening of Friday, October 19. It will continue through December 2.

For further information and/or prospectuses, phone 609-292-5420 or write to: Bureau of Art, N.J. State Museum, P.O. Box 1868, Trenton, N.J. 08625.

Edith's To Open Expanded Shop at 30 Nassau

After 23 years on Chambers Street, Edith Zuckerman is moving her lingerie shop. It will be a bigger shop on another street.

Shortly after Labor Day, she will open the door of 30 Nassau, where Stone's Linen Shop used to be, extending her warm welcome to women (and men, buying glamorous gift lingerie) who, over the years, have become friends as well as customers.

It was in February, 1956, that she opened a small shop at 8 Chambers Street. "I started with nothing," she says, in her rich Hungarian accent. A few years later, she expanded into 10 Chambers, and these two shops have been her address ever since.

At 30 Nassau, she will have twice the space. Her Chambers Street neighbor, architect E. Harvey Myers, has designed display racks for long robes, gowns that are long and elegant or short and sassy, a special area in the rear for bras and girdles, and fitting rooms.

In addition to the lingerie by Pucci, the fashion bras by such houses as Olga, Bali or Vassarette, Edith has her skill as a professional fitter. "... from the young girl with AA, right on — well, right on up," she says.

Born in western Hungary, almost on the Austrian border, Edith studied the design of bras, girdles, surgical garments and bathing suits in Vienna and Budapest, studying at a Viennese hospital to learn the fine points of surgical fitting.

She came to the United States in 1947, worked for a time in a lingerie and corset shop in Worcester, Massachusetts, then came to Princeton. For the new Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center, she set up a bra, girdle and lingerie department. And one year later, she went out on her own.

From the first, her full-time working partner was her mother, Helen Legath. Mrs Legath, whom customers still remember for her sophisticated wit and her Hungarian elegance, worked side by side with Edith until 1973, when she died.

Edith now shares her charming Princeton house with her father, Laszlo. The bouquets of roses on the lingerie counter come from Mr. Legath's formal garden.

"I never could have made it without the help of my parents," Edith says quietly.

Another long-term associate is Alison McGilvra, who has been with Edith for 17 years. As moving day drew closer this week, Edith's associates began to pack all the glamour into heavy cartons, and when Edith observed "We all take pride in our services," Edna Luther added with a grin, "... and in our packing!" She has been with Edith six years. Shirley Gould is a colleague of five years' standing, and Helen Kagles has been with the shop for a year.

continue to operate as a national bank at five locations in Cape May County. As of June 30, Marine had assets of more than $100 million.

Horizon will acquire Franklin Bank by merging it and the holding company's recently acquired Bergen Bank of Commerce, based in Paramus, N.J. The merger will involve $10 million in cash, the announcement said. Franklin Bank shareholders will receive $29 per share and holders of Franklin's Convertible Capital Notes will receive a like sum per share upon conversion of the notes. The merged bank will operate seven branches in Bergen, Passaic and Morris counties. At June 30, Franklin Bank listed assets of about $96 million.

Upon completion, the two mergers would give Horizon Bancorp a network of 59 offices in nine of New Jersey's 21 counties, according to Messrs. Shepherd and Ethrington.

In addition to Bergen Bank of Commerce, Horizon Bancorp's present subsidiaries are American National Bank & Trust of New Jersey, Morristown; and Princeton Bank and Trust Company. A non-banking subsidiary, Horizon Credit-corp, specializes in yacht financing and secondary mortgages from offices in New Jersey, Florida and Texas.

dividualized programs in their public schools.

In this class, students work with the same material offered to all children but learn at their own pace. There is a strong emphasis on getting along with each other and working as a group.

The class is taught by Barbara Gantwerk, the State Department of Education's consultant in speech and language. Mrs. Gantwerk has a background in special education and has lived and worked in Israel for three years. Her goal is for her students to feel a sense of belonging to the Jewish community.

She feels it is important for these boys and girls to learn the skills that will enable them to take part in a variety of Jewish experiences. The Jewish Center is located at 435-57 Nassau Street. Telephone: 921-0100.

Committee Working on Program To Fit Needs Of Princeton's Gifted and Talented Students

What is a "gifted" student? A "talented" student? And how can their special needs be met in Princeton's public schools?

The same state law that requires every school district to provide a "thorough and efficient" education for all its pupils, also requires school districts to provide for students with exceptional gifts and talents.

A gifted and talented program will be the big one this year, in terms of planning, according to Assistant Superintendent Paul Jennings.

For the past two or three years, Dr. Jennings says, staff members have been going to workshops to learn about things that can be done with gifted students of all ages.

Together with a group of parents, they attended a series of evening seminars, listening, for example, to a representative from the Education Improvement Center who gave an overview of New Jersey laws regarding gifted students, and the laws in other states, and to other speakers also.

The group chose three model school districts and invited representatives from each one. Then they visited the schools. They are now evaluating their reactions to those visits.

LETO BAR

Paul Jennings

Task Force Planned. In the school year that is about to begin, they will set up a task force of parents and staff, which will examine the various offerings in all of Princeton's schools to find out what is needed, and to evaluate what's already being offered. By the end of March, Dr. Jennings hopes, the schools will be able to identify gifted and talented students and begin to set up a program.

As the assistant superintendent points out, Princeton's schools already have offerings that fit the gifted-and-talented category.

"Take the Princeton High School choir, for example," he says. "It recognizes special talents and auditions are open to all, but you have to be chosen to be a member of the choir."

"Also, there is the Advanced Placement Program at the high school. That may well fit into the gifted-and-talented category."

Over the winter, as members of the group work on priorities, and try to decide where the weak spots are in Princeton's system, they will be working on the biggest question of all -- how do you identify gifted and talented children?

A Mine Field. The whole question of gifts and talents is, of course, a mine field and Dr. Jennings and the schools know this. Parents are notorious for believing their children to be both gifted and talented, often simultaneously, often in the face of completely contradictory evidence.

"Some kids are what somebody called 'severely gifted,'" Dr. Jennings smiles. "They are so bright it's hard for them to function in a regular school setting. They could be harmed in such a setting, as a matter of fact."

There are school districts -- Princeton is not among them -- who simply look at national statistics. Nationwide, the top five percent of the school population is regarded as gifted. So a school system will lop off the top five percent of its pupils, set up something special for them and call it a day.

"A serious mistake," Dr. Jennings shakes his head. "Just as a start, that national five percent might be Princeton's 20 percent."

"You need to know the abilities of each student, and work out an educational program for each -- just good, plain education, providing for each child what that child's needs are. Basically, this is no different from remedial education."

In fact, Dr. Jennings suspects, Princeton may well find students now in remedial classes who are gifted in some areas.

In its thorough-and-efficient legislation, New Jersey laid down guidelines -- not regulations -- for schools in handling their gifted pupils, Dr. Jennings explains. But the law does require that attention be paid.

Community members of the group that has been discussing gifted-and-talented are John Bahcall, Madeline Blinder, Morton Collins, Rosalind Frisch, Rachel Gray, Tady Hunter, Myrna Jenkins, Betty Klingbiel, Ellen Kuris, Lynn Maher, Naomi Mather, Anne O'Neill, Pearl Pashko, Mary Pickens, Henry Rulon-Miller, Frances Shelpuk, Carol Steinberg, Janet Wolinetz and Ching Volpp.

Summer Intime's Production of 'After The Fall' Well Worth the Effort by Actors and Audience

Arthur Miller's "After the Fall" is a demanding play - demanding of both the actors and the audience - but it is one that is well worth the effort, particularly in Summer Intime's current production. Alan Langdon has directed this highly emotional and potentially confusing play - which builds to an almost unbearable pitch - with great clarity and professionalism.

Written in the early 1960's after the suicide of Miller's wife Marilyn Monroe, "After the Fall" is perhaps the playwright's most directly autobiographical work. It is startlingly bold in its juxtaposition of the Holocaust, McCarthyism, and the narrator's personal holocaust his relationship to his mother, his first wife Louise, and his second wife, Maggie.

The play is about guilt and innocence and the often all-too-hazy dividing line between them, but it is also about the meeting point between public and private guilt.

Quentin is a lawyer and, on the brink of his third marriage and his second wife have died, to a German named Holga. He is horrified at his inability (well-played by Laura to mourn these women, both of Halper), he reflects over the whom he loved and yet ruins of his past. He is trying to determine where he went astray. Within the last 14 months, we learn, his mother and his second wife have died.

FINAL SUMMER INTIME OFFERING: Arthur Miller's alter-ego Quentin (Richard Maynard) re-lives an altercation with his first wife (Michele Ferber) and one between his parents (Wendy Saivetz, John Whitesell II) in "After the Fall."

(John Simpson photo)

The play unfolds with the directness of painful recollection brought to life while it is remembered. Quentin is like a patient working out and exorcising his past on a stage rather than on a psychiatrist's couch. There are constant associations that intrude into his memory, and certain scenes return to haunt him -- and are re-enacted -- again and again.

VACATION TIPS

FALL FOLIAGE is just beginning in beautiful Belgrade Lakes, Maine. Come and enjoy the scenery and relax for a weekend, a week or longer.

Nestled among tall pines, you'll have your own cabin right on the lake, complete with stove, refrigerator, hot water and three delicious home cooked meals daily. The warm days and cool nights are invigorating. The lake temperature is around seventy degrees and ideal for swimming, fishing or boating.

This has to be a haven for joggers also - with over three miles of dirt roads. Or perhaps you'd rather play tennis, paddle tennis or even ride at Jack Carlton's Riding Stable.

Woodland Camps was founded in 1917 and for years has provided the ideal spot to rest and soak in this magnificent part of the State of Maine. Open from May through October and only about one hour away from the mountains and ocean. Try their Friday night lobster dinner and more!! Why not phone the Grant's at 207-495-2251 and reserve a lakeside cabin? They will even meet you at the airport or better still drive up as there seems to be plenty of petrol. $25 per day or $35 per day with riding, tennis and paddle tennis.

Isn't it time for a mini-vacation and a chance to see the fall colors? For information write or phone:

Set Crucial to Staging. The set is crucial to the successful staging of this complex play, and Tom Kamm's gray platforms which step up at angles so the stage tilts down to the left in the foreground and up to the left in the background, are excellent. This abstract landscape seems symbolic of the twisted, skewed world that Quentin is trying to comprehend. On the practical level, the multi-tiered set enables several scenes to occur simultaneously, like the superimposed images in Quentin's mind.

The acting is exceptionally good. Richard Maynard deserves congratulations for his portrayal of Quentin. He is warm and sympathetic and manages to pull off even the most difficult monologues with alacrity.

Wendy Saivetz is the loving, ambitious, disappointed Mother, and Michele Ferber the bitterly dissatisfied first wife who tries to "club" Quentin to death with her innocence.

Celeste Clark handles the difficult role of Maggie wisely by not trying to pretend to be Marilyn Monroe. Her development from a smilingly accepting dumb broad in Act I to a star who has lost both her naive sweetness and her grip on life in Act II is convincing. My one complaint with her performance is her obvious care to see that her bathrobe remained closed in all the bedroom scenes; this prudishness is grossly out of character.

Dale Coye, Nancy Bleemer, Kevin Meconi, Margaret Snow, and John Whitesell II all give commendable performances in the supporting roles.

The lighting, also by Tom Kamm, is not up to snuff with the carefully worked out staging or set. The stationary spotlight that Quentin is supposed to step into whenever he returns to the present is a good idea in theory, but in practice it leaves the character in semi-obscure all too often.

The slides - I presume they were of concentration camps, but was unable to make them out clearly from my seat in the fourth row, center - are also a good idea, but not distinct enough here to be effective. They might work better in a larger theatre.

"After the Fall" dramatizes one man's attempt to come to terms with a world that contains evil. Innocence and love are not enough, Quentin finds. After much searching he determines that the answer can be found only after the fall, after the fall from in-

Street Theatre Hoping to Raise $4,500

"If you help, the show will go on." That's the message from Street Theatre, which completed its planned summer productions according to schedule in spite of the fire that destroyed its mobile stage, but...

What about the future? Nobody, so far, has come forward with a trailer which could be converted to a mobile stage. Got one to donate? Sell cheap?

Members of Street Theatre have started a drive to raise $4,500 to buy a used trailer and rebuild the stage. If you've supported Street Theatre in the past, you'll receive a flyer announcing the fund drive and its goal. Street Theatre even hopes for enough to acquire a more modern light and sound system.

Next summer will be Street Theatre's tenth season. Members hope they can, once again, set up their moveable theatre in various locations around Princeton and neighboring communities, as they have in the past.

If you have furniture, electric cable or that indispensable trailer, you may call 924-7452 or 882-0646 and your call will be received with joy and gratitude.

Contributions to Street Theatre, tax-deductible, may be mailed to Princeton Street Theatre, Bunn Drive, Princeton, 08540. Karen Schleyer is treasurer. The producing director of Street Theatre is Debbie Bellow. Ralph Heyman has been the assistant this summer.

nocence — when you face up to the fact of evil and stop trying to deny your knowledge of it. "Perhaps we can start from that," Quentin concludes. "After the Fall" is a play in which the end is a new beginning — and an invitation to see it again, as it is a work which bears many re-viewings.

CLASSES SCHEDULED

By Ballet Society. Following a successful 25th anniversary year, the Princeton Ballet Society will begin classes in ballet, modern dance, and jazz at the Princeton and Cranbury studios Thursday, September 20.

Classes will be offered at all levels, beginner to professional, kindergarten to adult. Instruction in yoga, Middle Eastern dance, and women's ballet exercise will also be given.

Registration for new students will take place on Tuesday, September 11, Wednesday, September 12, and Thursday, September 13 between 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. at 262 Alexander Street, and The Old School, Main Street, Cranbury.

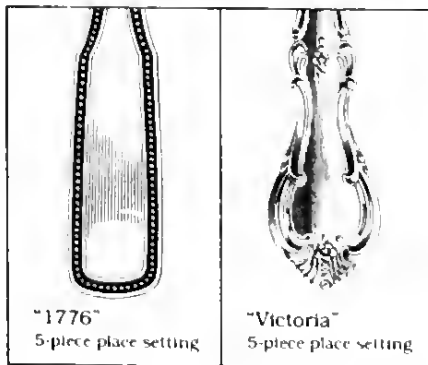

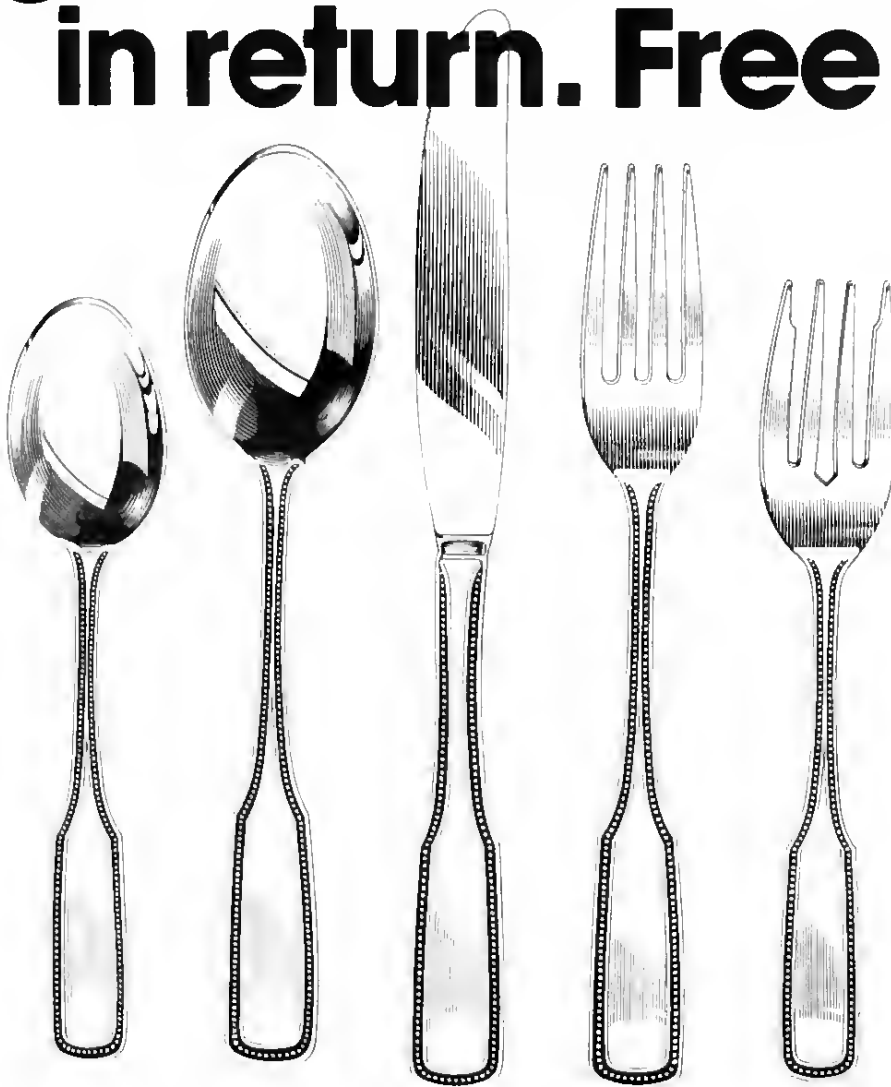

Audree Estey, the Society's founder and artistic director, has announced a faculty of 16 for this year. Headed by Mrs. Estey, ballet instructors include the two associate directors of The Princeton Ballet, Jane Miller Gifford, former principal dancer with The National Ballet and Harkness Ballet, and Barbara Sandomato, who was a principal dancer with The Pennsylvania Ballet.

Sally Edwards, who trained with Jose Limon, and Teresa Hoskins, a member of the Royal Academy of Dancing, will also return to the Princeton Ballet Society School faculty.

Larry Clark heads the modern dance department. Mr. Clark, a member of the Viola Farber Dance Company

Auditions for Boys

Local boys, with or without acting experience, are invited to audition for four parts that must be filled for McCarter Theatre's production of Tad Mosel's play, "All the Way Home."

Boys must be between five and ten years of age, and be available for rehearsals from September 18 to October 29, and for performances from October 30 to November 18.

Auditions will be held Saturday, September 8 from noon until 4 p.m. at McCarter.

Those who would like to try out are asked to call Joan Barry at 452-6123 between 9:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, for an appointment.

Boys should take a recent photograph with them (snapshots are acceptable), and must have a one-minute piece prepared. It may be a song, poem or nursery rhyme.

tember 10 and 11 at 8 p.m., with a call-back date of Wednesday, September 12. Auditions will be held by director Susan E. Tapper at the 171 Broadmead theatre.

The cast calls for an adult male between the ages of 40 and 60, five males from 18 to 30 and one female, 20 to 40. Production dates are October 26, 27, 28; November 2, 3, 4 and November 9, 10, 11.

"The Rainmaker" is about a drought in a prairie community, a spinster, and an alluring stranger who promises to bring rain. The play was the basis for the musical, "110 in the Shade."

"We recently purchased an important new lighting panel for our theatre," says PCP president Dorothy Edwards. "It will permit greater flexibility and creativity than we have had before."

Besides the lights and conversion to in-the-round, PCP members are installing new carpeting — courtesy of The Rug and Furniture Mart — laying down several new coats of paint, hanging new theatre posters in lobby and greenroom.

The theatre is on the second floor of a former private school building. It is expected that renovations will remove that last of the school-room look.

The opening party of the season will be held at the theatre on Sunday, September 9 from 5 to 8 p.m. Non-members, invited as always, will learn about committees and structure and will be allowed to sign up as members.

Potential set designers, lighting personnel, costumers, just-plain-workers — and actors, too — are invited to attend.

The four plays chosen for the 1979-80 season will be

ROOTS CAN KILL

with Sam deTuro
Woodwinds Associates

A tree fails to leaf out on the first two or three feet of branches around the perimeter. One half of a tree from top to bottom has the foliage willing. Is it a strange disease, or should an accusing finger be pointed toward the ground?

Girdling roots frequently cut into the base of a tree and choke it, much like a noose around a person's neck. The damage is, in many cases, irreversible because the visible symptoms of it above ground do not show up right away. By the time large sections of the tree begin dying, removal of the strangling root is impractical.

The best indication of girdling roots comes through an examination of the trunk at the soil line. If this area does not flare out but goes straight into the ground, be suspicious of roots underground growing across and against the trunk.

If the crown of the tree is not too far gone, cut the troublesome root or roots with a sharp chisel. Although removal of some roots reduces the amount of water and nutrients previously supplied the tree, the loss is small compared to the restored capacity of the entire circumference of the trunk to function in the uptake of liquids to the foliage. Then feed the tree heavily to restore vigor and to promote healing.

WOODWINDS is happy to answer any questions concerning your valuable trees and shrubs. Please call us at 924-3923.

XA

35mm POCKET CAMERA

Amazing, how they made a camera
this little this good!

It weighs just 7.9 ounces. And it measures only 4 1/2 by 2 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches - about the size of a pack of cigarettes.

Yet it's capable of truly fine 35mm photography, and it's loaded with big-camera features.

The XA has aperture-priority automatic exposure - you just select the aperture and the camera automatically sets the right shutter speed.

It has easy, rangefinder focusing. There's a special lever that automatically compensates for backlighting situations.

The self-timer beeps and blinks, with super-bright LED.

And the sliding Dust Barrier not only eliminates the need for a case by protecting the viewfinder, the rangefinder and the lens - when it's opened it automatically switches the camera on and unlocks the shutter release.

There's a lot more. So come in, lift it, feel it, fiddle with it. We think you'll walk out with the new XA in your pocket!

Princeton Has an Early Plus in Ivy Football: A Distinct Edge in Experienced Quarterbacks

WHERE TIGERS' HOPES REST: In its drive to achieve a winning season for the first time in several years, Princeton will be able to count on a pair of experienced quarterbacks, co-captain Stava Reynolds (15) and two-year letterman Ken Barratt (12). Available for reserve duty is junior Mark Lockenmayer (13). No other Ivy League team comes close to matching the Tigers' experience or depth at this vital position.

Princeton University's 1979 football team must show considerable improvement over its 2-5-2 record of last fall before it can nail down a first division berth in the Ivy League but the Tigers will begin their season with one distinct advantage over all seven of their traditional opponents. Whereas they can count on a pair of experienced senior quarterbacks, not one of the other teams in the league has available the quarterback who began the 1978 campaign for it.

Gone from Brown is Mark Whipple, who directed an offense that averaged 368 yards to top the league, while Dartmouth must replace All-Ivy Buddy Teevens, the architect of the Green's first-place finish. Harvard graduated Larry Brown, whose name is now in the book as the holder of virtually every Crimson passing record.

Penn is without Tom Roland, who ran its intricate wishbone offense well for two years, while Yale hopes again to develop a quarterback as adept as Pat O'Brien became in his final season after going two years without winning a letter. Columbia and Cornell do have holdover players who finished as starters in their November games, but neither had sufficient experience last fall to earn the ranking of "established quarterback." At Columbia, senior Larry Biondi will have to win the job from junior Bob Conroy, while Cornell will choose between

Because the reigning quarterbacks at Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Penn, and Yale were so dominant in their senior years, there is virtually no experienced personnel waiting in the wings. At Brown, for example, the two leading candidates to wear Whipple's shoes have thrown just one varsity pass between them. Defending

None of the quarterback candidates at Penn has played a minute of varsity football. Four are sophomores, one is a junior who was injured all last year. Not only must they learn the difficult wishbone attack, but they will do so with three other brand new backs, inasmuch as the Penn backfield was swept by graduation.

Yale, where Carmen Cozza has done such a tremendous job for the past 14 years, will choose from a senior, Montana State transfer Dennis Dunn, who played very little last year; a junior, Phil Manley who, like Dunn, has champion Dartmouth must choose Teevens's successor from among a little-used varsity holdover, last year's jayvee signal caller and a converted defensive back.

Fine Sophomore at Harvard. Harvard will replace Larry Brown with one of two untested seniors, neither of whom owns a letter. If they can't do the job, the Crimson might turn to a highly-publicized sophomore, Ron Cuccia, whose credits include high school All-American ranking in California and the ethnic nickname of "Italian stallion." A flashy, frequently elusive quarterback who disdains the protection of the pocket, Cuccia should sell a lot of tickets at Cambridge while he is learning Coach Joe Restic's picturesque multiflex offense.

Here's a football oddity...Although there have been games in high school and college football history when one team scored over 100 points in a game, NO pro team in the National Football League has ever done it...In fact, no NFL team has ever come close...The most points ever scored by one team in an NFL game was 73, by the Chicago Bears in a game in 1940, and oddly enough, in all the years since then, no NFL team has ever been able to top that.

I bet you didn't know...that many health insurance plans for families do not cover children after they reach 19 years of age.

Here's a believe-it-or-not from football...The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League gave up more points than they scored themselves last year — yet STILL FINISHED IN FIRST PLACE in their division!...The Vikings scored 294 points last season while giving up 306, but they finished in first place.

Can you name the 5 backs in the history of football who gained the most total yards rushing in a major college career?...They are, in order, Tony Dorsett of Pitt...Archie Griffin of Ohio State...Ed Marinaro of Cornell...Ted Brown of North Carolina State...and, Terry Miller of Oklahoma State.

not impressed with his passing; and a sophomore, John Rogan, who can throw the ball 50 yards or more and just might beat out the others on his long-range promise.

Against this seeming disarray, Princeton will go with Co-Captain Steve Reynolds as its starter, with two-year letterman Ken

Barrett in reserve. Coach Frank Navarro won't say how much of an edge he feels their presence gives his team, because other factors in overall development present sizeable problems to the Tigers, but he is happy with the degree of experience that Reynolds and Barrett have had. "We know," he says with satisfaction, "what our quarterbacks can do."

A Year Makes a Difference. A year ago, when Navarro was about to begin his first season at Princeton, he had virtually no known strength at the skill positions. Barrett had seen enough action behind Kirby Lockhart to win a letter at quarterback, Reynolds didn't even have that much time. Cris Crissy was still an untried sophomore, later to become the first member of his clan to win All-Ivy honors at Princeton since 1957.

Now, Reynolds has developed as the better runner of the two quarterbacks and that, blended with his satisfactory passing (a 47 percent average and five touchdowns — one for every seven completions) has given the Princeton offense visible mobility. Barrett, who had only two interceptions in 108 attempts last year, started the first three games but lost out to Reynolds when the latter proved he was more adept at using the options provided by the veer.

Nonetheless, he returned to a starting role with a highly successful 21-0 victory over Penn when Reynolds was benched by a hamstring pull, ending a string of six straight victories by the Quakers that many felt were an accurate reflection of the matching number of years of poor Princeton football.

"Teams will have to prepare differently for us depending on our choice of quarterbacks," Navarro says. There is no indication that Reynolds will not be the starter as long as he gets the job done, but Barrett's passing will be called upon without hesitation when needed. "He came very close to getting us the tying touchdown in that last game against Dartmouth, after we sent him in in the second half," Navarro recalls.

Good Depth. Two other quarterbacks will be ready on a reserve basis, although neither can count on a great deal of varsity action as long as the two seniors remain injury-free. One is junior Mark Lockenmeyer, the Tigers' outstanding pitcher; the other, sophomore Bob Holly. The latter started all six games for the freshmen, leading them to victories over Columbia, Penn and Yale, and earning a 13-13 tie with Harvard when he passed for 270 yards.

If the edge that Princeton has in experience at quarterback is to show early, it will be at Hanover on September 22. Having come within seven points (28-21) of tying Dartmouth in the extremely well-played finale of the 1978 season, the Tigers are hopeful that the tested Reynolds-Barrett combine will outmatch anything that Dartmouth can produce in its first game without Teevens.

Improvement for which Navarro, his staff and the players will work in 1979 may hinge to a considerable degree on the outcome of the Dartmouth game on Dartmouth's own turf. After that comes a tough game with Rutgers and then another road trip — to Providence, where Brown, the logical Ivy favorite, will be the choice to trim the Orange and Black for a seventh straight year. The Tigers will be underdogs in their first three games, a tough assignment for a team bent on moving above the .500 mark for the first time since the opening year of the present decade.

PADDLE CLINIC OFFERED By Princeton Youth Sports. An application is available in the sports pages of this issue for the fourth annual Paddle Program for young paddle players sponsored by Princeton Youth Sports.

Princeton Youth Sports is a non-profit organization sponsored by the George R. Ferguson, Jr. Foundation, a private, tax-exempt foundation established in memory of Mr. Ferguson, who died in January, 1976. PYS seeks to support youth athletic activities, making possible programs which might not otherwise exist.

One is the platform tennis program for young people, about to start its fourth season of free clinic instructions and tournament play for 180 Princeton youngsters. Under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Ross, adult volunteer paddle coaches will give a four-week course of instruction at the Community Park, Bedens Brook, and Pretty Brook courts, as well as private courts turned over to the Sunday afternoon program by Princeton residents. It is felt that this program has been instrumental in developing an interest in paddle as a competitive fall and winter sport by a number of Princeton's young players. George Ferguson was well-known, not only for his skill as a paddle player, but for his sportsmanship and promotion of the sport.

In addition to the paddle program, Princeton Youth Sports has been an annual sponsor of the Jadwin Basketball Program. It has been a supporter each year of the Princeton AAU Olympics Program which annually has 500 entrants. More recently, it has encouraged, with funds, the fitness trail being installed on the north side of Community Park under the direction of the Princeton Jaycees.

Princeton Youth Sports and the Ferguson Foundation seek suggestions regarding its paddle program. They can be given to anyone of the Trustees which, in addition to George R. Ferguson, Sr., include Louise Ferguson, Peter Budd, Dean Chace, John Dumont, Sue McCabe, Frank McDougald, Dick Thompson and Jack Wallace.

Half-Marathon Set for September 23

The third annual Princeton Half-Marathon will be held on Sunday, September 23rd. The 13.1 mile race, certified and sanctioned by the N.J.A.A.U., supported by the First National Bank of Princeton, will once again benefit the YMCA.

Runners will take off at 1 p.m. on Hodge Road, across from the YMCA, and finish at Palmer Square, where awards will be presented. Trophies will be awarded for men and women in the following divisions: youth (14 and under), high school (15-18), open (19-29), sub-masters (30-39), masters (40-49), and veterans (50 and up).

Jim Rafferty, a Flushing, New York man, won last year's race in one hour, nine minutes and 19 seconds. Finishing second and third in a field of 1,200 runners, were Peter McNeil and Eamon Downey. Lynn Jennings, a Princeton University student, led the women to the finish line.

Peter Clark, the Director of the Princeton Half-Marathon, states that 2,500 runners are expected to line up at the starting line this year in what some call a dry run for the New York Marathon. Five hundred entrants are expected to run the three-mile "Run-for-Fun," which starts shortly after the Half-Marathon.

Applications may be picked up at the Running Start on Chambers Street or at any of the seven offices of the First National Bank of Princeton.

Princeton team members are Jan Noonan, Marge Pierson, Ginny Aris, Gail Owen, Melinda Achenback, Karen Dutch, Noko Manabe, Adrienne Smith, Judy Bergmann, Jenny Lehmann, Mary Precheur and Diane Black. For further information about future league play in the New Jersey District, call Laura Goldfield, district coordinator, at 921-2820.

TENNIS PLAY BEGINS

In MSTAs Leagues. Middle States Tennis Association has begun a program of League Play, wherein six districts enter both men's and women's leagues. Each district league will have up to eight teams, organized according to ability.

The fall leagues will be geared to intermediate players, but in the spring MSTAs will sponsor league play for advanced beginners and advanced players. This season's league play will culminate with post-season tournaments: a round-robin tournament in Harrisburg, Pa. in October, and an inter-sectional league playoff in Cherry Hill in November.

Teams in the New Jersey District are Hunterdon Tennis Center, Hopewell Valley Tennis Center, Lawrence Township, Franklin Town-
